The Roadrynner

A Purpose-Driven Run

by Ryan Horner

Hello all! My name is Ryan Horner, and I'm currently finishing up my freshman track season at Wabash College. I ran for Eastern High School "back in the day" and raced quite a few of the Club Kokomo summer road races! As quickly as word spreads in the running community, you may or may not have heard about the race I'm hosting this summer. On July 7 at 9 a.m. (the Saturday after the Haynes Apperson 4 miler), I'll be hosting the Jerome ActiveWater 5k Run/

Kokomo YMCA's Conference Room

Walk at Jerome Christian Church just south and east of Greentown. It's a very flat course and should be great for setting personal bests! However, regardless of whether you are chasing fast times or looking to spend time running with friends and family, I ask that you consider coming out and supporting an awesome cause!

Thanks to the help of local sponsors, we're going to be able to do something special with the registration fee that each participant pays. 100% of the money will go to a non-profit organization that I've worked with over the last few years called ActiveWater. ActiveWater is an organization that uses athletic lifestyles and events to raise awareness and funds to solve the water crisis on Earth. Almost 1 BILLION people in the world today have no access to safe drinking water, and many are walking an average of 6 miles per day just to fetch a single bucket of water. ActiveWater is fighting the crisis by traveling to countries like Zambia (in Africa) and Cambodia (Asia) and helping the local residents combat the water problem by setting up wells and bio-sand filters with their help.

I've had a calling to help ActiveWater for about a year now. Last summer I attended a Christ In Youth summer conference with my youth group at Jerome Christian Church. We spent a week at Johnson Bible College praising, worshipping, and learning about the Word. Early in the conference, the CIY staff played a few videos about ActiveWater, including a documentary that showed the difficulty of living in countries like Zambia without clean water access. As I said earlier, ActiveWater focuses on using athletics, and this really hit me hard at the conference. At the time I was in training for my first cross-country season at Wabash College, so I spent almost 2 hours each day at the conference running and doing strength exercises.

On one of my runs that week, I started to realize just how individual and, for lack of a better term, selfish running can be. I spend over an hour every single day of the year on an activity that rarely benefits anyone but me. Yes, I realized, running is a great thing, but who is it great for? The answer, almost every time, is that it is great for me. During that week, I resolved to get involved with ActiveWater and use my obsession with running for something bigger than myself. From this realization sprouted an idea: Even though training in a small town like Greentown is often an individual activity, races aren't! I decided to host a race to raise awareness and funding for ActiveWater, and use my (and others') obsession with running to do something bigger!

I hope you'll consider coming out to support ActiveWater by participating in the race. Feel free to register on the day of the race, but if you'd like to pre-register and save a few dollars, by June 25th, sign up online (www.http:// www.active.com/running/ greentown-in/jeromeactivewater-5k-2012) or by mailing in a paper registration, which is available at most local road races and the Miracle Mile. The race starts from Jerome Christian Church... to get there from Greentown, drive East on 22, then South for a mile on 213. and then head east. The church is less than a mile down the road. on the South side.

Boston Marathon Records Shattered

By Heather Weber

On Saturday, April 14, 2012, Jay Priest, Ron Moore, and I jet set with high hopes for a fun weekend with friends and especially for Boston marathon PR's. Knowing we are training buddies and great friends, with many memories from traveling together to other races, ski trips, concerts, etc., there was no doubt it would be a fun weekend. We were excited to meet Matt York, Bob Atkins and their cheer crew in Boston for some time in the city, race expo/preparations, Red Sox baseball and great food. Other runners from the area that took part in the race included Denise Bradley and Cheryl Marner.

Upon arrival we were met with frequent heat advisories that continued to escalate as the weekend grew nearer to Marathon Monday. The race was expected to start at record high temperatures. By Sunday the news/email we were receiving nearly hourly indicated that only the "most fit of athletes" should run the marathon and all others were encouraged to defer till next year.

There was discussion about whether we should defer till next year when we hoped to return with our other running buddies--

Chris James, Tony White, Nicole Peel and several other hopeful qualifiers. That discussion only lasted but a moment, knowing none of us would defer and that we all came prepared and trained to run our best race. Under any ordinary circumstances our requalifying times were very reachable. The fear of not requalifying at Boston due to the weather conditions was on the minds of many runners... 4290 registered runners either deferred or didn't even pick up their race numbers

For those of you who have run Boston, you know it's an early morning bus ride to athletes' village to wait in a holding area until 10 am when the race begins. If the race had begun at 6 am, we may have had different results. As we proceeded the ½ mile to the start line looking for any possible shade, it was apparent we weren't going to find shade on the course. It was a beautiful, very sunny, cloudless day, perfect for a beach day, unfortunately, not for a marathon!

Jay and I started together, anticipating we would run near the same race pace. Standing at the start I was nervous about starting to sweat without starting to run. Although my training partners can attest I tend to be the biggest sweater amount the group of guys! Not a good combo when mixed with 80 degrees and running 26 miles at noon.

At mile 9.5 I started getting stomach cramps and told Jay to go ahead without me. At mile ten I drank three cups of Gatorade and said a prayer that God would get me through in good health. I almost instantly felt I could survive but knew that was all I could expect for the day. Normally drinking at every water station would concern me about becoming hyponatremic or getting stomach cramps, but on April 16th I was afraid without drinking at every stop it would be a real struggle to make it home to my four little girls and husband.

If you have never run Boston, it is quite an experience in itself. The crowd is like NO other. Having been there in the past I knew the crowd would be helpful but it was beyond my greatest expectation to see the crowds really get their game on for every runner in the heat. There were kids with squirt guns, candy, fruit, brownies, and front yard water hoses. People refilling water cups and Gatorade bottles, trying to assist volunteers between water stations where they couldn't keep up filling cups.

The city opened numerous fire hydrants and set up carwash-like water tunnels. They tried to staff water stops to keep runners hydrated. 2100 people were treated at the medical tents along the course and last year's winner was airlifted during the race. The list goes on.

Jay and I ended up finding one another again at mile 20.5 and realized neither of us were able to maintain the pace we hoped, so we made a pact to finish together, which we did. At mile 20, T.A. Weber, Geana Moore, members of the York family, and the Atkins family greeted runners and at mile 24 we got a boost from our club president Rebekah and her fiancé. At the finish we found Matt York, our younger training partner who apparently never sweats and held up better than we did but couldn't pull off a PR due to the effect of the heat late in the race.

Once we finished, we knew we had trained for four months and had not run the race we had hoped for. We had not been able to beat the heat; we had run one of the most disappointing races yet. There were no records set... not for us, only for Boston where the records were shattered... the temperature records (80 at the start, 89 when we finished), the number of runners treated at the medical tent, the number of runners who had dropped out, the number of runners who had deferred or didn't picked up their race numbers.

Although most everyone was disappointed with their personal time, the victory was that God sustained us through the race. Not one of us ended up in the medical tent. (Ron Moore did receive some medical treatment from fellow running buddies on the train but was upright at all times.) Through our training and experience we became closer friends, ran one of the most all-time amazing races, experienced the greatest race fans, and have memories to add to our list of great times together. For Ron Moore, Bob Atkins and Denise Bradley this was their first Boston, what an achievement! To accomplish a BQ in itself is a victory!

Inspirational Thought of the Month

by Club Chaplain Steve Wand

I want to wish all of our fathers out there a Happy Father's Day this month. I, like most fathers, kind of fell into the job of being a father. Neither of our children came with an instruction manual or a do-it-yourself video, which I probably wouldn't have read or watched anyway. All I could do is the best that I could do. Fatherhood is more about providing the good soil for the seed to sprout than to provide rigid rules and harsh demands to make it grow.

Proverbs 16:1, 3 New Living Translation (NLT)

We can make our own plans, but the Lord gives the right answer. ³ Commit your actions to the Lord, and your plans will succeed.

THANKS

Thanks to our Club Kokomo family for the beautiful flowers for Helen. She always loved flowers and raised her own flowers every year. We love all of you.
